Taking extreme sports just that bit further, Norwegian paraglider Bjoern Magne Bakke Bryn landed on compatriot wingsuit flyer Espen Fadnes for 20 seconds of contact. The mid-air bodysurfing took place at Tianmen Mountain in Hunan province, China.

MIND THE GAP!

Nice short cut, mate

Norwegian downhill skier catches some sick air as he races rally driver

 Olympic gold medal-winning downhill skier Aksel Lund Svindal took on WRC driver Andreas Mikkelsen (currently 4th in the 2015 standings) down Norway's Lyseveien — with perfect timing seeing the skier soar over Mikkelsen's VW Polo R WRC ride as it sped along at 100kmh. When the snow ran out, Svindal climbed into the car for the rest of the 29km journey, shouting out pace notes as old mate hit the loud pedal and got her up to 160kmh.

China explodes!

A series of giant explosions lays waste to China's Tianjin and kills dozens of firefighters

GROUND ZERO

Two explosions, the second of which was equivalent to 21 tonnes of TNT, blew windows out of up to 17,000 units. No cause has been confirmed, though 700 tonnes of toxic sodium cyanide was kept on-site, along with two chemicals which react violently with water. As ZOO went to press, 114 were confirmed dead.

THE FORCE OF 21
TONNES OF TNT!

THAT NEW CAR SMELL

...in Tianjin will be more likely to reek of scorched metal. More than 8000 unused vehicles were destroyed in the explosions — six more followed two days after the initial blasts. Hyundai lost 4000 cars. As ZOO went to press, 39 of the 54 dead identified were fires, with 70 people still missing, 64 of them fires, and 698 injured.

SHIPPING HELL

Containers were tossed around Tianjin — the world's 10th busiest port in 2014 — as if they were made of foam. Several were reporting burning before the initial explosion, and 70 chemical warfare troops have been looking for survivors. Furious locals have been calling for an open investigation.

Sydney bombshell Krystal Nevaeh is about to become one of Oz's hottest models

GET THE APP!

G'day, Krystal, and welcome to ZOO. How's modelling treating you?

That was actually my first shoot! Since then I've shot with Foxtail Magazine in the states, some motorbike magazines, and I'm booked in with Playboy at the end of September.

Jesus, that was quick! It's pretty much unheard of for a model to land a Playboy shoot that fast...

[Laughs] I know! I didn't think I'd ever get naked for a mag unless it was Playboy!

Are they taking you to a fantastic location, like...

um, Rooty Hill in western Sydney?

We're going to go to Mexico, then Las Vegas. It's crazy! I'm nervous because they said they don't usually shoot tattooed models but I guess I'm the exception.

Are you going to ask for 3000 copies of that issue?

Yeah! I'll have a whole house devoted to it!

When you're not modelling, how do you earn a living?

I'm a secretary at a doctor's office. I've been doing it for three years. I'm studying to be a nurse — I love the medical field — but I like modelling more. I'd rather be in some nice lingerie than in the waiting room.

Makes sense. Are there any patients where you work who you think might be coming in when they're not really sick, just so they can see you?

[Laughs] Sometimes, yeah.

I actually wear a ring on my left ring finger so I can say, "Sorry, I'm married."

You should bulk-bill them just to talk to you.

[Laughs] You never know.

What about when you're not working? How do you keep yourself amused?

This is a bit embarrassing, because I don't do much. I'm a homebody. I guess I should be partying and stuff, but on Saturdays I'm at home watching Dr Phil.

Um... why?

I don't know, I can't even tell you! I've watched every season up to number eight. That's my Saturday night!

Maybe you watch it because it's like a car accident: it's terrible but you can't look away...

[Laughs] Yeah, horrible people are always fighting on the show and my life doesn't look that bad by comparison.

When's the last time you had an evening on the town?

Probably the start of the year, for my friend's birthday. I had to call my sister to pick me up at 12 o'clock!

Do you give it a miss because you constantly get hit on by guys?

That, and the quality of guys out there isn't too desirable, especially up in Kings Cross. I'd rather stay home in my bed!

And when you're out, which part of your body gets you in the most trouble?

I want to say my boobs, but I don't show them off too much when I'm out, so I'll go with my lips. Everyone has something to say about them.

Such as?

I am, very single, by choice.
I'm embarrassingly single!

And you've no desire to change that?
Definitely not, unless I can find someone on my couch.
We thought that was what Tinder's for. What sort of guy could change your mind?

I like someone with a sense of humour. He has to make me laugh and make me feel comfortable. But I know all girls say that.

Well, it's a starting point. But surely you care a little bit about what he looks like...

Yeah, I do care a little bit about how he is physically. I like a manly man, someone who's not good-looking to everyone. The kind of guy with rough hands that have done a hard day's work; the tradie kind of look.

➤ DEADLY NEW DRUGS ➤ TOM CRUISE

Lingerie cage fighting!

If there are three better words in the English language, we don't know what they are

 They came, they stripped, they looked hot in the fight cage. Las Vegas's Hard Rock Hotel has hosted an event mixing two of ZOO's favourite things: MMA and chicks in very small bits of lingerie.

The Lingerie Fighting Championships' "LFC 20: A Midsummer Night's Dream" featured eight bouts, with top billing going to defending champion Feather "The Hammer" Hadden, who took on Vivian "The Valkyrie" Voss. The Hammer won by KO in Rd1.

THE ULTIMATE BRA BRAWL!

"She [Voss] is a dirty fighter," Hadden said later. "Not in the cage but the way she runs her mouth in social media, talking all kinds of trash about me. I don't have to resort to that, and I let my fists do the talking."

LFC fighting styles include wrestling, Muay Thai and "psychic", which is used by Jenevieve "The Sorceress" Serpentine. She lost by KO to Cal Cat, who is also in the Women's Oil Wrestling League. Gulp.

It's serious stuff, too — so serious that Playboy model Karmen Moon cracked three ribs during sparring!

New DRUGS that can KILL YOU

Cops and health experts are having nightmares about these lab-made murder meds

WEAPONISED SUPER-WEED WREAKS HAVOC IN NEW YORK

 New York City cops are struggling to deal with crims who've been turned into supermen by a new strain of synthetic pot that increases their strength and makes them practically impervious to pain. Known as K2 or Spice, the drug also increases users' body temperature, so they often strip naked while they're going off their heads. And we mean right off their heads — YouTube videos of people on K2 show them fighting multiple cops at once despite being Tasered and pepper-sprayed, and in one case (top left) a man smashes his hands into the road while he makes strange noises at a police vehicle while totally nude.

"A better term for it might be weaponised marijuana," New York City Police Commissioner Bill Bratton said recently. "A number of individuals, when under the influence of this drug, are relatively impervious to pain and also have significant enhancement of their physical strength." At just $7.50 for a packet as big as a teabag, it's finding favour with NY's homeless, and Bratton says it's driving people "totally crazy". Similar drugs became illegal to own, sell or supply in 2012 in Australia.

FLAKKA IS DRIVING THE PEOPLE OF FLORIDA CRAZY

 Also known as “gravel”, flakka is a crystalline drug that’s giving cops in Florida fits because people who take it hallucinate, become paranoid and extremely violent, and gain strength. The drug, the stimulant alpha-PVP, raises body temperature very quickly, leading to what’s known as “excited delirium” — a state where users become psychotic, strip naked, and go off so hard it takes four or five cops to bring them down. It can be smoked, snorted, swallowed, injected or combined with other drugs. It’s also cheap at about $7.50 a hit, and like meth, it’s produced in labs.

Florida saw 85 flakka-related cases in 2012, but an astonishing 670 last year. In one instance a man on flakka impaled himself while trying to climb over a police station fence, and another got nude, climbed onto a roof with a gun, and tried to blow his head off due to hallucinations he was having. It’s no wonder Florida copper Lieutenant Dan Zsido said, “On a scale of one to 10, flakka is a 12.”

A WARNING FOR GYM JUNKIES

 A potent painkiller called fentanyl is becoming popular with some fitness fanatics who use it to help them recover after huge gym sessions, but some have paid the highest price possible. This March, Gold Coast-based personal trainer Michael Clayton applied a patch of the stuff before bed and never woke up, dying of the effects within a month. It’s alleged another fitness instructor supplied it to him illegally. US bodybuilder Erik “The Viking” Fromm died from a fentanyl overdose in 2008, and a year before that fellow muscleman Clinton Bitz also lost his life to the drug.

Fentanyl, used to treat pain after surgery and for cancer patients, is extremely strong and its use — both legal and illegal — is increasing in Oz. The same goes for Canada, where there’s a huge problem with overdoses. In the province of Alberta, 145 deaths have been blamed on it this year alone, cops are seizing it regularly, and it’s being combined with street drugs more regularly. Since 2013 drug workers have called for a campaign to warn about its use in rural Australia, and in many ways it’s being abused to deadly effect much like oxycodone, the powerful painkiller also known as “hillbilly heroin”.

Tom Cruise tells ZOO how close he came to disaster for Mission: Impossible 5

Hey Tom, how does it feel to be back in Ethan Hunt's shoes?

I just love making these movies. I love the spy genre, I love the theme music and how it evolves with every movie. It's a fantastic challenge creating this practical kind of action. I just want to entertain my audiences at the end of the day.

Mission: Impossible* is famous for its big stunts. Have you got a favourite from the series?

To be honest, it's really hard to think about one favourite because I've had so much fun with all of them. The rock climbing in Utah, scaling the Burj Khalifa, jumping off a skyscraper in Shanghai... they're all such epic moments.

You haven't even mentioned your latest: hanging off the side of an Airbus A400M as it takes off...

You know we had to do eight takes to get that right? And there was a moment on the first where we were hammering it down the runway and I was thinking, "Holy shit, maybe this isn't such a good idea!"

Did you have any problems shooting it?

Well, we were going so fast I just didn't want to be hit by a bird. But I did get smacked by a little stone in my side, and it hit so hard I thought it broke a rib. Thank God it didn't hit me in the face!

Who's the biggest joker on the Mission: Impossible set?

Jeremy Renner. We were filming in a train station and Renner and Simon Pegg were in the background for the day. During a moment of boredom, Jeremy sent a picture of one of his bollocks to Simon, and after that it became very difficult to do anything because neither of them could keep a straight face. This is your fourth action film in four years. Are you steering away from more comical roles?

Not at all. People still remember me from the likes of Jerry Maguire and Cocktail. It's just the way these things go, I guess.

I still love my comedy roles — like Les Grossman in Tropic Thunder!

Everyone wants to know if we'll ever get to see Maverick in a Top Gun sequel...

I think if I can sort it out, it would be great fun to do. I'd like to fly those jets again.

And you're a qualified pilot, right?

That's right! But I'm saying right now we'll have no CGI on the jets. We've got to fly all the jets for real. If we can figure it out — and the Department of Defense allows us — it would be great!

ZOO'S GUIDE TO DEADPOOL

The dirtiest superhero just got his own R-rated trailer. Here's why you should care...

WHO IS HE?

You might remember Ryan Reynolds playing Wade Wilson in the first stand-alone Wolverine film. By the end he gets turned into Weapon X, aka Deadpool, and has many combined powers of other mutants. But he can't talk. This movie version of Deadpool — and the comic book version it's based on — is way different.

DIFFERENT HOW?

In the upcoming Deadpool movie his super power is accelerated healing and incredible skill with swords, guns, knives, etc. And he can talk smack like nobody else. This dude will take the piss out of anything, and he swears like a wharfie, hence the R rating.

IS THIS JUST ANOTHER MARVEL MOVIE?

As Deadpool would say, "F**k no!" The R rating means there'll be Kick-Ass levels of swearing and way more violence and gore. Expect Deadpool to speak directly into the camera, too — something no other superhero has done on film. Bonus: MMA star Gina Carano will be bashing people, too.

IS IT COMEDY OR ACTION?

Both. There's blood and guts aplenty in the trailer, plus one of Deadpool's mates describes his scarred look by saying, "You look like Freddy Krueger face-f**ked a topographical map of Utah." And the man himself calls the X-Men's Colossus a "big, chrome cock-gobbler".

The Alcoholic Architecture, at the city's Borough Market, is the brainchild of jelly specialists Bompas & Parr, two mental Englishmen who specialise in artily dicking around with food and drink.

Their past escapades include glow-in-the dark jellies and scratch-and-sniff food screenings. "We'd been making a lot of jelly — essentially, making cocktails a little bit solid," said Bompas, "and we wondered what might happen if we made cocktails a little bit gaseous."

Visitors to the bar — called The Cloud, and much more fun than the computer one those nerds keep going on about — are limited to 50 minutes each, the equivalent of one large gin and tonic (1 part spirit to 3 parts mixer) being absorbed through your lungs and eyeballs. The humidity is 140 per cent. Think of it like Brisbane in summer but with gin instead of Bundy. Five years and $60,000 went into planning the venture, which included research on the rate people absorb alcohol when they're not chucking it down their yaps.

The bar's motto is "Breathe Responsibly" — which means the visitor will have to work extra hard at the bar ordering the monk-themed cocktails (the area hosts Southwark Cathedral) — and hopefully they've planned for what happens if someone sneaks a ciggy. If not, boom!

Entry is an English tenner. You can also hire them to cater weddings — which can include a walk-in cocktail cloud and having the cake cut with explosives!

The alcohol is absorbed into patrons' lungs and eyeballs, but not their clothes, thanks to these ponchos

Real-life Popeye!

Bloke's Warwick Farms are the size of Gina Reinhart's legs

Arm wrestler Jeff Dabe may not be great at sending text messages or picking his nose, but his wife Gina's not complaining.

The would-be world champion, nicknamed Popeye for obvious reasons and Anaconda for other obvious reasons, has forearms measuring 49cm around and can fit a basketball in his over-sized mitts.

"I couldn't believe my eyes when I [first] saw him," Gina said. Form an orderly queue, ladies!

Heavy equipment operator Dabe, 52, from Minnesota, has stumped doctors, who can't explain why his arms resemble legs of ham. They've tested him for conditions such as gigantism, which Andre the Giant suffered from, but have found nothing out of the ordinary for the 113kg, 175cm man.

"It doesn't hinder me," he said. "I can do whatever anyone else does."

He began arm wrestling in the 1980s as a high school senior, before giving it away in 1986 after popping his right arm. Dabe returned to the sport in 2012 using his left arm, becoming state champion and gaining an invite to the World Armwrestling League (WAL) circuit.

He says his training techniques include farm chores, "hard labour at work" and shovelling — with nothing but his hands, ZOO imagines.

Just whack some missiles into it and the new 3-Eleven is ready for action in a James Bond movie

 Fittingly, 311 is the US police code for indecent exposure, which this racy number is certainly guilty of with its lack of roof or windshield. Like its predecessor, the 2-Eleven, it takes its visual cues from the Exige S. The priciest Lotus yet promises “legendary handling and blistering speed”. The sub-900kg race version has a supercharged 3.5L V6, delivering 336kW and an impressive Lotus record of 0-100 in under three seconds. The road version tops out at 290kmh — yes, it’s road legal! — which is 10 kays quicker than the lighter racer. The car lapped Lotus’s Hethel track in 82 seconds, smashing the Evora 400’s prior record by 10 full seconds. Just 311 will be made by 2016, from $174,000. # JACQUES the RIPPER

ZOO's stand-up comedian heckles life every week

WHY TENNIS NEEDS MORE NICK KYRGIOS

A recent on-court sledge has put Nick Kyrgios in more hot water with the sporting fraternity. Nick was playing some Swiss fly-swatter called Stan Wawrinka and mid-match he laid a solid smackdown: "Kokkinakis banged your girlfriend, sorry to tell ya." Some might say Nick's comment about his mate and fellow rising Australian tennis star Thanasi Kokkinakis was a little below the belt, but sport at the highest level shouldn't be immune to this kind of lip service. On-field sledging is observed in almost every other sport, and Kyrgios' comment was pretty tame compared to what gets said on a cricket pitch. Maybe he could sneak into the 2016 Ashes squad to lift morale.

I don't have a problem with the sledge because Nick's statement was true — Thanasi had slept with her. I mean, when you say to someone, "I f**ked your mother", it's probably false... unless it's backyard cricket at your son's sixth birthday and he's getting a little too comfortable in the crease. Stan's lack of comeback is even more troubling: if someone steps up, you've gotta return verbal serve, but Stan had nothing, and it's not like he didn't have options: Kokkinakis sounds like "cocks in arses" and Nick's haircut is pretty "Gay, bi, Kyrgios..."

In stand-up I've gotta be prepared for a heckle at all times, and if I don't smack them down I'll lose the crowd. I know that if I had to deal with tennis balls getting pelted at my head at the same time it'd be a different story, but tennis players need to start dropping some verbal bombs and making centre court a little more interesting. You know, for the kids.

In the last month I've heard some cracking heckle returns from fellow comics and at this one particular show one woman got her arse handed to her several times... Woman: "You're not very funny." Comic: "I'm sorry you feel that way. What's your name?" She doesn't answer, she just goes quiet. Another audience member goes: "Come on love, spit it out." Comic: "To be honest, I'd prefer if she swallowed." Crowd erupts.

Later on when the headliner hit the stage: "I'm from America." Woman: "BOO!" Comic: "Excuse me, lady. Sorry to interrupt. I know it's annoying when you're in the middle of a conversation and someone builds a comedy club around you." Woman [sarcastically]: "Ha ha, very funny." Comic: "Do you have a husband?" Woman: "Nobody owns me... my husband's at home." Comic: "What's he doing there, masturbating to silence?" Crowd erupts.

Audiences and tennis spectators are no different — they're animals and they pay for blood. I'm not calling Wawrinka a soft cock for taking the sledge so badly, but tennis in general needs to change with the times. If they want to attract a new generation of younger fans then the old guard needs to pull the cucumber sandwiches out of their vaginas and start playing hardball.

Gift

Get the old bloke a ZOO-approved gift and you'll definitely get the house when he dies

$14

LED CAN COOLER

Not only does the Nite Ops Can Cooler's ABS plastic-moulded body stand out, it also has an LED strip — turned on by twisting the base — so in the dark your dad a) won't lose it, or b) kick it over. We want one too.

WEBER GO- ANYWHERE GRILL

You'll still need your charcoal, but you won't need much space with this compact item. There are 160 square inches of room on the nickel-plated grille, while the porcelain-enamel lid will resist rusting.

FORD MUSCLE CARS

It's likely your dad was around in the glory days of Bathurst, covered in this new book focusing on 1969-'79 — the era of the Falcon XW GT-HO and the XA and XB. There are over 300 photos from the era and a detailed history of all the muscle cars. Clearly, if Holden blood runs through his veins this is the quickest way to start a fight. Make sure before you buy.

DIGITAL SMOKER

American barbecue, smoked low and slow, is as good as you'll get — and the Char-Broil Deluxe Digital Electric Smoker has temperature sensors and an auto shut-off to make sure the meat's not overdone.

UNDERWATER FISHING CAMERA

Got the snazzy Shimano reel? Why not invest in the GoFish camera, too? The HD 170-degree lens attaches to the line to capture the action in normal, night vision and infra-red. A microphone will even capture the sound of the fish either dying or fleeing from him in triumph.

THE

WEIRDEST
SHOWS

ON TV!

Well, the weirdest ones apart from Sunrise and Studio 10, anyway...

THE MUMMY
WRAPPING GAME

□ The Japanese produce a lot of insane TV, but TORE! — the mummification game — is up there with the weirdest. Contestants are tied to a pole and asked trivia questions by a digital version of Tutankhamen while a machine wraps cloth around their bodies. Fail to answer all the questions in time and they end up “mummified” and enclosed in a casket. We presume they then die and are buried in a tomb made of schoolgirl panties, with their living relatives given diamond-set mementos from Bruce & Walsh. Some people thought this was for real, believe it or not.

THE SWAN

□ Like some torture-porn flick, this 2004 US reality show took a bunch of “ugly duckling” American women and had them compete to become The Swan through a grueling regime of exercise, dieting, styling and... extensive cosmetic surgery. Amazingly, this ghastly spectacle went for two seasons, with reputable magazine editors, photographers and agents acting as judges. To no-one's surprise, contestants have since said the show, once dubbed “the most sadistic reality series of the decade”, ruined their lives.

RAMEZ IN CONTROL

For a moment we had massive respect for this Egyptian prank show when in June this year it was reported they'd hoaxed Paris Hilton into thinking she was about to die on a crashing plane. The footage is awesome as we see the socialite scream for her life while other passengers try to parachute to safety. The next day Paris made headlines by saying she intended to sue the producers for making her shit her designer G-string. But the real bummer was that the 34-year-old celeb was in on the gag all along, which makes this episode of Ramez in Control the most pointless exercise in TV since Eddie McGuire.

ARMED AND FAMOUS

If you thought I'm a Celebrity Get Me Out of Here was bad, how about this 2006 shite in which Z-grade American celebs got to become real-life, gun-toting cops? The five dingbats — Jack Osbourne, La Toya Jackson, Jackass's Wee Man, former CHiPS star Erik Estrada and lady wrestler Trish Stratus — underwent training to become reserve officers in Indiana's police force and were then unleashed on the public. A&F lasted only a few episodes before being cancelled due to poor ratings and terrible reviews. But the show did result in a US$1m lawsuit after Osbourne was involved in a raid that mixed up an address, leading cops to ransack an innocent woman's house.

THE INTERCEPT

File this Russian show from 1997-'98 as one we want to see remade. The premise is that a small group of "hijackers" are given a brand-new luxury car. They get to keep it if they can outrun a team of six "hunters", all driving police interceptors, during a 35-minute chase through the streets of Moscow. Boringly, the contestants had to obey traffic rules, but that's something we'd get rid of when doing the Aussie version on the streets of Toorak or Vaucluse.

ORGASM WARS

In this Japanese game show, a heterosexual guy's big challenge was to not have an orgasm... while his dick was in a box being sucked by a gay dude. "That's frustrating," the straight fella said when it was gay-me over and he'd lost. "A lot came out, didn't it?" replied the triumphant tonsil tickler. The competition lasts 40 mins.

KIMONO RACES KOMODO

Ah, the Japanese celebrity, is there anything they won't do for a laugh? In 2013, as part of a morning TV show, popular personality Ayako Imoto donned a kimono, tied a chunk of meat to her back and had a running race with a komodo dragon. Granted, Godzilla attacks have made the Japanese pretty good at outrunning giant reptiles, and true to form, Ayako survived to see her video go viral.

WHISKER WARS

☐ “The competitive world of facial hair growing” sounds about as exciting as the “fascinating pastime of watching paint drying”. But that didn’t stop American TV channel IFC from producing a series hosted by awesomely named champion beardy Jack Passion and focusing on the hopeful hair growers of Beard Team USA as they prepared for the world championships in Norway.

In a tremendous example of our tax dollars hard at work, ABC TV screened this seven-part series earlier this year.

PRINCE OF POETS

☐ While it sounds like a really dull video game, it’s actually a popular TV show that’s been produced in Abu Dhabi since 2007. And when we say popular, we mean really popular — last season’s Prince of Poets finale attracted 20 million people. All across the Arab world, fans thrilled as Alaa Janib, a middle-aged lecturer from Cairo University, recited classical Arabic poetry to win the $AED 1m ($368,000) grand prize. Whatever you do, just don’t get the show confused with Million’s Poet, Abu Dhabi’s other nationally televised high-stakes poetry comp. That’d be just as stupid as mixing up MKR and The Hotplate!

GAKI NO TSUKAI

☐ This Japanese variety show has been on the air since 1989 and is famous for its “Batsu” segments, which are “penalty” or “punishment” games designed to humiliate contestants for the fun of the audience. The best one involved contestants being chased around a gym by freaks in full-body latex gimp suits who then held them down so an assortment of dudes — and naked children — could rub their bare arses in their faces.

STRIP THE GIRL

☐ Even for Japan, this one’s out there. A naked girl stands in a shower. Her modesty is barely protected by a series of numbered squares. A dude in underpants and helmet throws balls at the squares to reveal her body while he tries not to be pulled down a slope by a rope into a vat of black liquid. So, like every episode of Q&A, really. The rules? Who knows? Make as much mess as possible?

YOSHIMI TOKUI'S UNZIPPED

□ This late-night Japanese show is famous for its racy segments. The best offers Japanese dude contestants a million-Yen prize ($10,900) if they can sing karaoke songs all the way through — while Japanese porn hotties (including, of course, one in a spiked gimp mask) give them handjob. Now there's a way to make The Hot Seat live up to its name.

BOY MEETS BOY

□ It's a show that should've brightened the rainbow hearts of marriage-equality activists everywhere because it seemed like the gay version of The Bachelor. Lucky homosexual chap James got to choose his ideal partner from a smorgasbord of 15 smoking hunks. The only catch was that half of these sexy suitors were actually hetero. So, if James chose a gay guy, he and his new mate got a prize and were off on a holiday. But if he chose a straightie, poor James got nothing but cruel disappointment, while the hetero himbo picked up $25,000 for his trouble. Happily, James chose a gay dude. Unhappily, it didn't last.

VANILLA ICE GOES AMISH

□ The Amish have become a weird staple of reality TV, having starred in such productions as Amish Mafia (about the supposed Sopranos of their community) and Breaking Amish (rebel teens leave home and go wild for a while). But for must-see TV, you can't go past this 2013 show that has blinged-out-rapper-turned-DIY-home-handyman Vanilla Ice dropping in on an Ohio technology-shunning Amish community to learn the traditional ways of renovation, barn-raising and chicken-wrangling. The lesson? "Stop, collaborate and listen!" Awesomely, it was successful enough for a second season, which, to quote the PR guff, "reunites Vanilla Ice with his Amish ninjas". Less awesomely, the religious folk's moral ways don't seem to have rubbed off on Ice, Ice Baby, with Vanilla recently charged in connection with a burglary.

BERGENSBANEN: MINUTT FOR MINUTT

□ When Norway's not hosting beard-offs, it's screening railway celebrations in mind-numbing detail. In 2009, national broadcaster NKR showed BergensBanen: Minutt For Minutt, which was basically a camera strapped to the front of a train as it travelled the Bergen line in its entirety...

for seven hours, 14 minutes and 13 seconds. Wow, look at the scenery! And the scenery! And those train tracks... going through scenery! Amazingly, some 1.2m nerdy Nords tuned in. If you've got a good tab of acid — and a night to spare — the whole thing's watchable on YouTube.

MEGAN WANTS A MILLIONAIRE... OR A MURDERER

Playboy model Megan Hauserman — a sexy sophisticate who'd been a contestant on Beauty and the Geek, I Love Money and Rock of Love — starred in this 2009 reality dating show in which she had to choose between 17 dudes who were all worth at least $US1m. The big bummer was that, shortly after filming finished, Ryan Jenkins, one of the rich blokes and the winner of I Love Money 3, is thought to have strangled his wife Jasmine Fiore before mutilating her and stuffing her body in a suitcase. This charmer, charged with murder, then committed suicide. It was later reported Jenkins had made it all the way through the finals of Megan Wants a Millionaire. The show was pulled from air after the murder. None of his ILM eps were ever shown.

MAN VS BEAST

Imagine Matt Preston trying to out-eat a ravenous golden retriever and you get the idea of this 2003 American TV special that pitted people and animals in a series of insane challenges. So, a US Navy SEAL had to take on a chimp in an obstacle course, a competitive hot-dog eater faced off with a hungry Kodiak bear, a world-class sprinter raced a zebra and... 44 dwarfs took on an elephant to see who could tug a DC-10 plane fastest in the desert. The elephant won in a close contest.

HOLIDAY IN THE PROTECTORATE

Picture Big Brother with Nazis and you've got the basis of this bad-taste reality show produced in the Czech Republic in the middle of this year. The premise has three generations of a family put into a detailed recreation of a 1939 rural environment controlled by Nazi occupiers complete with local informers and brutal Gestapo soldiers. If the family handled the pressure for the show's eight-week run, they stood to win just $50k. Unsurprisingly,

Holiday in the Protectorate attracted criticism, not least 'cos the Nazi protectorate in Bohemia and Moravia was no holiday, with some 82,000 Jews murdered or sent to concentration camps and death during their rule.

MR PERSONALITY

☐ This 2003 dating show was kinda like The Bachelorette meets Saw as imagined in a wet dream by Bill Clinton. That's because 20 dudes had to compete for the love of a hottie relying only on their personalities because... they were made to wear creepy burns-victim-from-the-opera masks the whole time. And your host? Monica Lewinsky, one-time presidential intern whose claim to fame was getting splooged on by Bill Clinton!

PANIC FACE KING

☐ This Japanese hidden-camera show is like Punk'd if Ashton Kutcher was a demented serial killer. In the most notorious episode from 2009, an unsuspecting dude is sitting in an office with three other men. Suddenly, there are gunshots, the sound of breaking glass and the chap's companions fall down with wounds spurting copious amounts of blood. Our poor idiot scrambles for the door, only to find it locked as the sniper's bullets come ever closer and... surprise, you're on TV!

5 WEIRDEST MOMENTS ON AUSSIE TV

AGRO'S X-RATED OUT-TAKES

☐ Comedian Jamie Dunn was the genius with his hand up Agro's arse. One look at his out-takes on YouTube will show you his mind was way too dirty for a kids' TV show.

BERT NEWTON NEARLY DIES

☐ When Moon Face said "I like the boy!" while standing next to Ali at the 1979 Logies, he didn't know "boy" was a big insult against a black man. He's lucky the champ didn't punch portholes in him.

HOTDOGS GETS HIS OWN SHOW

☐ Until My Kitchen Rules started, this was the low point of Aussie TV: giving former Big Brother bloke Hotdogs his own interactive quiz, The Up-Late Game Show. It ran for two seasons, which was two more than it deserved.

CHOPPER PLAYS RUSSIAN ROULETTE

☐ Uncle Chop Chop put a pistol to his head and pulled the trigger in an interview with journo Renee Brack. He then pointed it at her and pulled it again. She survived.

DON LANE LOSES HIS GEAR

☐ Sceptic James Randi was on Don's program in 1981 and had the nerve to criticise one of the show's regular performers. Don took offence, lost it, said, "You can piss off!" and stormed off the set.

ZOO chats to the YouTube star about doing drugs, killing kids and his new zombie film

G'day, Alex. How's it all going over in Scotland for the Edinburgh Fringe?

It's going absolutely gangbusters over here with the locals.

Have you got a missus or have you been sampling some of the hairy haggis?

I have been on Tinder over here. The last two times I did bring a girlfriend over and I wouldn't recommend going to Europe with a girlfriend that you're not really into. Especially when there are girls that are interested or they come up after a show and they're like, "Can we give you a handjob?" Then I say, "Just let me ask my girlfriend... she said no, sorry." But this year it's been good. I always find when I go overseas I do tend to just f**k people from Adelaide still. That's happened once or twice already, but I broke through with a local the other night, so I'm winning!

Was she a ranga?

She wasn't actually but I've seen some really beautiful redheads here. When I was in school and teasing redheads you wouldn't see too many beautiful ones, but that's the new black.

Yeah, orange is the new black. Was it fun filming Me and My Mates vs the Zombie Apocalypse?

Absolutely. It was the first experience I'd had on something professional. I'm used to getting my mates from footy to hold the f**king camera.

Did you get to ad-lib at all?

When you've got Jim Jefferies, Greg Fleet and myself in the same room they definitely give you a bit of a licence to have an ad-lib, and some good stuff certainly came from that. I’d go and have a bong and say, “Let’s try that one again...” That sometimes gave it an extra flavour [laughs].

“I’VE ALWAYS WANTED TO KILL A ZOMBIE CHILD”

What’s the craziest thing that happened off camera?

Just the constant pursuit of drugs was pretty amusing, which would lead to Fleety going, “Go on, Shooter, just post on your Facebook page! Post on your Facebook page!” So sure enough I did and had about 80 people roll through with all sorts of different drugs, handing them through the window of the hotel.

So there’s a lot of method acting in your drug skits?

Yeah, “meth” acting [laughs].

From the trailer it looks like you have a sex scene in the film — is it hard not to crack a fat when you’re filming?

Yeah, good question. I guess because the assistant director

No, I thought about it. I thought about stopping halfway through the scene and just snapping one out, but I think that would’ve made it weirder [laughs].

If you got wind of a zombie apocalypse and only had 24 hours left to live, what would you do with that time?

Probably just do my tax — make sure my tax is all done and in order for the next financial year.

That’s very responsible...

[Laughs] Nah, I think I’ve always wanted to kill a child.

teeth and stuff, and I’d love to just f**k it up with a weapon.

What can you tell us about the www.tugg.com.au website — is that NSFW?

[Laughs] It sounds like it, doesn’t it? It’s actually a fresh, new, f**kin’ groovy concept where you can book a movie into a cinema and if enough people respond, then they’ll play it in that cinema, and that could lead to it being played anywhere in the world, I imagine. It’s a cool, simple concept that didn’t exist two years ago. I’m excited by it.

Is the bloke we see on YouTube what you’re really like or do you ham it up a bit?

It’s pretty exaggerated. Because I was such a stoner I’m a pretty reserved, quiet sort of character and I don’t like drawing attention to myself. I won’t be loud and getting f**ked-up boisterous and stuff in public. I’m pretty quiet in reality, but the drug thing is something in my life that I could mirror in my videos. Other than that, I’m a polite, respectful boy, and you wouldn’t think that from watching a few of my videos...

And what do your family make of your work?

Um... it’s funny you say that. Dad’s a drug and alcohol doctor... yeah... so sometimes it’s been interesting hearing his response. And Mum pretended for a long time that I wasn’t her son, but I think she’s starting to accept it.

Jarryd Hayne for and against

He killed it in his first NFL game. Here's why that's big news... and why it shouldn't be

WHY HIS FANS SHOULD BE EXCITED

FORGET THE RUN, WATCH THE KICKOFF RETURN

Hayne's 53-yard run on his second carry as a running back got all the attention. But possibly the most impressive thing he did in the game was his 33-yard kickoff return to start the second half. Instead of running as hard as he could as in the NRL, he showed patience and waited for his blockers to open a lane for him before he hit the accelerator. Then his instincts took over in the open field. Waiting for blockers and reading where the holes will open up is a key skill and one Hayne's never had to learn before now. If he can keep that up, it will help his cause far more than his play at running back. Which brings us to...

HIS SPECIAL TEAMS PLAY IS KEY TO MAKING THE SQUAD

This issue of ZOO went to press before Hayne's second preseason game. But even if he plays running back as well or better than in his first, that won't help his chances of staying on San Francisco's roster too much. Why? Because the RB position is incredibly important, and even if the blokes ahead of Hayne — Carlos Hyde and Reggie Bush — get badly hurt, the team will sign experienced players from other teams rather than put the ball in the hands of someone as raw as the Aussie. Rookies who weren't taken very high in the NFL draft often make teams based on how well they catch, block and tackle during punts and kickoffs. And since Hayne wasn't even drafted and never played in college, this special teams play is even more important if he wants to land a job. Hayne's special teams play in the first game was good, and he's shown in practice that he can catch the ball quite safely, which is extremely important. Matter of fact, he's shown he can catch four balls one after the other without letting one go to make room for more. When he tried to snag a fifth, he couldn't. Then again, Pittsburgh's Antonio Brown can't do more than four, either, and he's got possibly the best hands in the NFL.

HE CAN HANG WITH NFL PLAYERS PHYSICALLY

Hayne has had to put on a fair bit of muscle to cope with the upsized NFL defenders, all while retaining or even increasing his speed. He looked to have done a good job of both against the Houston Texans, showing he could outrun some linebackers (like a second-rower in the NRL), while being strong enough to stiff-arm safeties (like centres in the NRL). He can still change direction sharply despite being noticeably bigger, and he accelerates and slows down well. Importantly, adding a helmet and shoulder pads to his uniform didn't seem to put him off, either.

WHY HIS FANS SHOULD CHILL OUT

THAT BIG RUN WAS MOSTLY THE WORK OF OTHERS

ZOO's betting all the beer in the office fridge that when the 49ers review the Texans game and get to Hayne's big run, the offensive line — the big dudes who start each play in front of the quarterback — will get most of the credit. And deservedly so; holes the size of the one Hayne ran through are pretty rare. On top of that other blockers cleared out players behind the defensive line (the big dudes who try to kill the quarterback) so Hayne wasn't close to being touched until he reached what's called the second level of the defence (safeties and cornerbacks — the equivalent of outside backs in the NRL). To be frank, any running back would be expected to rip off a big gain when they get blocking of that quality.

WATCH HIS FIRST CARRY

Just before his headline-making gain, Hayne made two yards up the middle of the defence... and almost fumbled the ball. Had that happened he might've been pulled from the game, because ball security is everything in the NFL. Unlike the NRL, the US league lets defenders strip the ball at any time, and they're very well trained at doing so. Most are far bigger and stronger than Hayne, too. This will have been brought up in the film room.

HIS OPPOSITION WAS A BIT ORDINARY

The NFL's early preseason games aren't about getting the team's best players used to footy again; they're about making sure they don't get hurt. San Fran's starters — the best 11 players — only played one possession on offence. Same goes for the Houston Texans' defence. So the Hayne show came against some guys who won't be able to keep a job in the NFL, and as such it's not even close to being a good guide to how he'd go in a real, live regular-season game. The second and third games are usually when starters play the most, so if Hayne gets put on the field against, say, Dallas's first-team defence, then we'll see what he's really made of.

PREMIER LEAGUE STARS talk to ZOO!

Manchester United's NEW GUN!

Memphis Depay is following in his hero Cristiano Ronaldo's footsteps with the Red Devils

Welcome to the Premier League, Memphis. Has Wayne Rooney been looking after you? You're his new strike partner, after all...

[Laughs] We played together in pre-season and Wayne coached me a lot through the game about which positions I should take and when to defend. We have to form a partnership and I have the right feeling with him. It's an honour to play with such a legend as Wazza.

How happy are you to be working under United manager Louis van Gaal again?

The boss gave me the opportunity to play at the World Cup [when van Gaal managed the Netherlands national team] and he showed a lot of confidence in me. I think he's the best coach in the world and he makes me better on the training ground. That's very important for me.

Can he develop you into one of the world's best, like Sir Alex Ferguson did with Ronaldo?

Ronaldo is my hero and I watched a lot of him when he played at United. I know it's a tough league — everything is faster and stronger. But I am young, I'll learn and get better.

"RONALDO IS MY HERO AND I WATCHED A LOT OF HIM AT UNITED"

Will you be able to reproduce your form at your previous club, PSV Eindhoven?

Yes, I really feel ready. I'm training hard and I'm looking forward to playing in the Premier League for the best club in the world.

What about trophies?

Can you also win silverware with your new side?

I want to win trophies with United. We are Manchester United, so I think that's realistic. We must be creative and the defence has to be strong. Then we'll win games and compete for trophies.

“We want a trophy and top four!”

looking to carry that on and continue to grow as a captain.

A lot of new faces have arrived at the club on the field and in the coaching department. What's the atmosphere like?

It's freshened us up and everything is looking positive so far, but we've got to keep going, keep working hard and pushing ourselves to the limits.

Adam Lallana didn't have a pre-season last year because he picked up an injury, so he was always fighting to get fit. But he's a top, top player and he'll be flying ... We see every day in training what he's capable of, and I've told him I'm expecting big things of him.

What's the aim for the season?

Winning a trophy and getting back into the top four. It's a big aim and a big season for everyone — not just Adam!

So says Liverpool skipper Jordan Henderson

How stoked are you to be inheriting Steven Gerrard's captain's armband?

I'm absolutely delighted and proud. It's a great honour and a huge privilege to be named captain of this football club.

You must be used to it by now after your trial run last season...

When Steven Gerrard wasn't in the team last season, I tried to do the best I could when I stepped in and took the armband. Now I'll be

“Arsenal can win the league!”

Gunners midfielder Aaron “Rambo” Ramsey says his boys can go all the way if they stop the patchy parts of their season

After a slow start last season, how important is it to get off to a flyer?

In the past couple of years we've started off well and faded. Last season was the reverse of that. It's a case of being consistent throughout the season, which I'm sure we can do.

Does the acquisition of champion goalie Petr Cech make you title contenders?

It's going to be very important for us to start the season well. We have the players, we have the squad and if we can keep everybody fit throughout the seasons we have a great opportunity of winning the Premier League.

The key to this is beating the big teams regularly...

One of the main positives from the last campaign was that we improved in the bigger games and got results. We changed our tactics at times: against Man City we sat back and hit them on the counter, but we got the results.

After an injury-hit season, is it hard to get back into Arsenal's well-stacked midfield?

I want to stay fit and healthy, have a full campaign and get my place back in the middle of the park. It's where I feel I play my best football.

Is that the role you see yourself playing?

I want the ball every time we attack, but I don't want to be fixed in front of the back four or in the hole. I want to be the one who can get up and down.

THE Z LIST

ONECHANBARA Z2: CHAOS

PS4

9/10

THE GIST: Send zombie limbs and blood everywhere as two pairs of buxom vampire sisters use blades to rid the city of undead. These hump-worthy heroines can transform into blood-lusting demons in short bursts for upgraded speed and power.

ZOO SAYS: It's a Japanese PS3 game only now ported to English, so the graphics are a bummer, but the wackiness, gore and bikinis are fantastic! Boobs, booty and zombies are a winning triple no matter what.

SHOOTER

GEARS OF WAR: ULTIMATE EDITION

XBOX ONE

THE GIST: Now we can rev those chainsaw lancer guns and split grubs in two once again with the Gears of War quadrilogy. All four Xbox 360 third-person shooter games are getting remastered in 1080p/60 frames per second for Xbox One. It also overhauls the multiplayer modes, using the mechanics from GOW3. ZOO SAYS: This series was one of the best cover-based shooters of all time, and if you somehow missed them, now's the time to get on board. Even if you've played them already, they're worth the replay for the great campaign and also for the addictive online co-op horde mode. The overhauled graphics are a good thing made better, like the guy who took a bra and invented the push-up. Play them in order for the best experience.

BLU-RAY

MYSTERY

WAYWARD PINES: SEASON 1

[MA15+]

8/10

THE GIST: A US Secret Service agent (Matt Dillon) investigating the disappearance of two agents in a small town called Wayward Pines gets in a car prang and wakes up unable to leave the f**ked-up town. ZOO SAYS: Each of the 10 episodes has a different director (M. Night Shyamalan is one), but they're all consistently weird and excellent in a Twin Peaks kinda way.

FAST & FURIOUS 7

[M]

8/10

THE GIST: Dom (Vin Diesel), Brian (Paul Walker) and the rest of the crew go up against Owen Shaw's nutbag brother Deckard (Jason Statham), who is hell-bent on revenge. ZOO SAYS: It's a miracle this even got made after Paul Walker's tragic death halfway through filming. It's even more of a miracle that it's one of the best in the franchise thanks to Aussie horror director James Wan's insane action scenes and a script that is a fitting but sad tribute to Walker.

SURVIVAL
HORRORUNTIL DAWN
PS4

THE GIST: It's your stereotypical teen horror plot: a handful of jocks and babes go to a log cabin and get taunted by supernatural sightings and a sicko serial killer in the dark. Motion-captured actors include mega babe Hayden Panettiere (Heroes) all done in high-quality digital form and all with irritating voices, like Paris

Hilton after she sucked on helium. ZOO SAYS: Kinda like a cross between the SAW and Texas Chainsaw Massacre movies, it's not the most original story, but it mixes legit suspense and cheap thrills well. We liked making key choices that determined who lived and who died. It's a very scripted game without much user control.

SPORT

MADDEN NFL 16
PS4, XBO, PS3, XB360

THE GIST: Set! Hut! If Jarryd Hayne happens to make the San Francisco 49ers roster, expect to see the former NRL star in shoulder pads and helmet here. Like all annual sports games, it's more of the same thing. A newish mode called Draft Champions expands on the trading card system, which allows you to open packets of cards to draft your team before playing them online. ZOO SAYS: Without any NFL video games to compete with Madden due to licensing rights, it has no competition and feels lazy. It's a serviceable gridiron game that looks OK, but feels much like the previous games, with too much hand-holding and not enough user customisation and control.

FILM

I'm not a gyno but I can take a look...

HORROR/
COMEDYSTALKER
[MA15+]

THE GIST: Jack (John Jarratt) is a bit of a creep who likes to stalk women. He gets more than he bargained for when he decides to cross the line and break into Emily's (Kaarin Fairfax) house. Turns out she's a bit of a psycho herself and the hunter becomes the hunted when Jack wakes up tied to a chair at the mercy of a sexy sadist. ZOO PREDICTS: From what we can gather from the trailer, Jarratt's directorial debut looks like it's aiming for laughs more than frights. So those of you hoping for Wolf Creek-level scares might be disappointed.

PSYCHOLOGICAL
THRILLERTHE GIFT
[M]

THE GIST: Simon (Jason Bateman) and Robyn (Rebecca Hall) are a married couple with a seemingly perfect life. But that all goes to shit when Simon bumps into an old school acquaintance, Gordo (Joel Edgerton), who starts leaving them gifts and reveals a dark secret.

ZOO SAYS: Aussie Joel Edgerton is going from strength to strength in Hollywood. This is his directorial debut — he also wrote it — and he knocks it out the park both behind and in front of the camera in this creepy thriller with a divisive ending.

MELODIC DEATH METAL

SOILWORK

THE RIDE MAJESTIC

8/10

SOUNDS LIKE: Ten albums in and without any of their core guitarists left in the band, these Swedish melodeath legends somehow continue to sound as excellent as ever. After 2013's ridiculously good double album, The Ride Majestic is a more concise affair full of the band's trademark melodic lead guitars and Björn Strid's insanely catchy choruses. ZOO SAYS: Always underrated, these six Swedes are consistently making music just as good if not better than peers In Flames and Killswitch Engage.

INDIE ROCK

FOALS

WHAT WENT DOWN

SOUNDS LIKE: From the two tracks we've heard so far, the fourth album from these English indie rockers is shaping up to be another pearler. The title track is everything you'd expect from Foals: dark, edgy, angular guitars, a heaving chorus, and an epic climax full of clashing cymbals and epic keyboard effects.

ZOO PREDICTS: Mountain at My Gates is more mid-paced and less mind-blowing. Here's hoping the rest of the album follows the lead of the title track — and their back catalogue — by being awesome, forward-thinking rock.

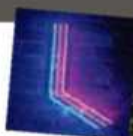

FOLK ROCK

THE PAPER KITES

TWELVEFOUR

SOUNDS LIKE: The Melbourne indie folk-rock five-piece have followed up their mega-successful debut with this sleepy, moody offering produced by Phil Ek (Fleet Foxes, The Shins) in Seattle. Written by Sam Bentley over two months between midnight and 4am (hence the title), the lush tunes capture the vibe of those nocturnal hours when not even a Pornhub marathon will get you to sleep. Influence from Death Cab For Cutie, Husky and even The War on Drugs shines through. ZOO SAYS: Along with Holy Holy, The Paper Kites are flying the flag for '80s Australia-infused folk rock.

INDIE ROCK

LAST DINOSAURS

WELLNESS

6/10

SOUNDS LIKE: These Japanese/Aussie lads make music so happy and vibrant it should be prescribed as an anti-depressant. The shimmering lead guitar, bouncy bass, upbeat drums and high-pitch vocals are exactly what you'd expect to hear at a summer festival while pretty girls with flowers in their hair sit on a guy's shoulders with their hands in the air (just before copping a few choice swear words for blocking our bloody view). ZOO SAYS: Too sugary for us, but it'll no doubt get flogged on Triple J and spawn lots of sold-out

RABBITOHS VS BRONCOS

7.45PM, THURSDAY, AUGUST 27, CHANNEL NINE

Last year's premiers play this year's likely minor premiers in a match that should have huge ramifications for the finals. When they last met in round one, Souths put the cleaners through Wayne Bennett's boys. But while the Bunnies have stumbled a bit since then, the Broncos are the form team of the comp, playing very direct football through their killer halves pairing of Anthony Milford and Ben Hunt, with Matt Gillett proving himself one of the best forwards in the comp. Souths stars Adam Reynolds, John Sutton and Isaac Luke will have to be in top form to prevail.

The girls of ZOO Singles leave their inhibitions at the computer screen and reveal all about their raunchy online dating experiences...

CARLY, 26

"I broke up with my long-term fella and realised I wanted something different: just fun... just sex! After signing up to ZOO Singles I had access to hundreds of guys minutes from where I live. At first I was quite shy, but after a few days I'd had amazing sex! With a new guy to please whenever I feel like it, I've never felt so satisfied!"

DESIREE, 43

"I find men my age cannot keep up with my highly active sex drive, so I prefer the effort put in by a horny 20-something. One guy wanted me so badly he would contact me in the middle of the night to meet up! It turned me on so much knowing how badly he wanted sex. I guess there's a certain appeal to a woman with experience in the bedroom."

TARA, 21

"I work nights in a hotel and my sex life suffers, so I signed up to ZOO Singles. I wanted one guy right away so I suggested he pay me a visit at work. I checked him into a room and after a few minutes I got a very sexy room service request. With customer service a priority, I put a 'Do Not Disturb' sign on the door, and then he began to rip off my clothes!"

8 THINGS
TO SAY
DOWN
THE PUB
ABOUT...

FOOD IN SPACE

If mankind's going to reach other planets, we'll need to grow grub. And NASA's just done that...

1 Cosmonauts on the International Space Station (ISS) have eaten the first-ever food grown in space — romaine lettuce

2 The six heads were planted on July 8, 18 months after being in orbit, and harvested a month later. The space farmers cleaned them with citrus-based wipes, ate them raw, then dressed them with olive oil and balsamic vinegar

3 "Tastes good," said Scott Kelly. "Kinda like arugula." Which is American for rocket

4 The Veg-01 program has several aims. It costs $30,000/kg to send food to the ISS — if missions go to Mars, astronauts will need fresh food in their diet

5 There's also a psychological bonus, too. "Crews report that having plants around was very comforting," said NASA scientist Giola Massa. "The crew just likes to nurture them"

6 NASA used green LEDs alongside more efficient red and blue LEDs to grow the lettuce and make it look more green, and familiar, than it'd otherwise be

7 Modern Farmer magazine reported in 2013 that space veggies could include radishes, snap peas and a special strain of tomato

8 NASA has also put US$125,000 into research to build a 3D printer for food — with pizza one possibility. Good thinking, spacemen!
